CONTAINER GRAPHICS NAMES QUINTESSENCE WINNER

CARY, NC (October 15, 2012) – Neil Saunders, Chief Executive Officer of Container Graphics Corp., and Jim Alexander, the company's President and Chief Operating Officer, recently presented the corporation's CS¹ Quintessence Award to Rodney L. Garmon. The award is given in recognition of an individual or group's dedication and contribution to realizing the company's CS¹ philosophy – Customer Success Priority #1. CGC first bestowed the award in 1993, and it has become the company's most distinguished honor.

Mr. Garmon has been with Container Graphics for 29 years and currently serves as Technical Manufacturing Consultant, based at the company's facility in Stone Mountain, GA. Mr. Garmon began his career with Container Graphics in 1983 as a die maker, and moved on to work on special projects and technical support in recent years. Mr. Garmon travels to CGC plants and to customers worldwide to provide training in the best use of the company's products and techniques.

Neil Saunders commented, "Rodney's technical capabilities combined with his untiring dedication to improving our customers' converting processes completely describes our CS1 philosophy." Jim Alexander added that, "Rodney has proven his dedication to our customers for many years focusing on improving their diecutting productivity. We are proud to have such a dedicated individual representing Container Graphics."

Container Graphics Corporation is one of the world's largest manufacturers of printing plates and cutting dies and related services for packaging production. The company maintains its corporate headquarters in Cary NC (USA), and operates 18 facilities.
